T. B. Carter is in town purchasing furniture, and, having lost his residence and nearly all of its contents by fire on Wednesday afternoon. A high wind was blowing at the time the fire was discovered, and it was impossible to stop the progress of the flames. A defective flue is supposed to have been the cause of the fire. Mr. Carter places his loss at $2,500, insured for $1,000.

John Cochran and partner, two industrial prospectors, arrived on the outskirts of town last night and camped. They had the usual outfit and two burros. This morning they were surprised to find the burros in the city pound instead of in camp. The occurrence of this little incident has led to a discussion of the methods of running the city pound and several have expressed themselves very plainly over the lively manner city herders gather in stray animals. It is also openly asserted that the hills around town have been the scene of midnight rodeos and cows run into the pound that had no business to be there. The two burros belonging to these prospectors should have been released at once this morning without charge, instead of the officials compelling these poor men to get out and rustle for the penalty money.

Little tricks like the above hurt the town more on the outside than they benefit us.

Saturday, April 28, 1894.

A Youth's Mishap at Juniper.
A correspondent of our contemporary writing from Juniper under date of April 28, says: "Oliver Johnson, the 16-year old son of Mrs. M. E. Johnson, went out horse hunting on the morning of the 26th and was to be back on the same day. Night came and the boy failed to come. Thinking perhaps he might have strayed with some friends, nothing was thought of the matter until 11 o'clock the next morning when his riderless horse returned with saddle on. A searching party at once started out and found him on a bad malpais cañon, wandering about in a dazed condition. It is supposed his horse fell, throwing him against the rocks. He was out one night and two days without food or water. He is badly 'broke up' and knows no hie of the mishap or how it occurred and still talks in a rambling and unbalanced way."

Gentlemen, Take Notice.
If you are in need of a suit of clothes, wait for J. Derr, the tailor, tailor and cutter of Flagstaff, who has decided to locate in Prescott April 20th.

Why the Industrial Army movement should be called after Coxy is a conundrum. He is getting lots of notoriety and deserves very little of it. He is engaged in riding around selling horses, while the army is marching to Washington. His scheme at most was only a big road petition; it never contemplated a movement like that now in progress. The most insignificant member of the army, if he can be said to belong to it, is Coxy.—Ex.

Duke & Hoagland's stage to the Braden proves a great convenience to that section, and it is being liberally patronized.
